OBJECTIVE

I am a dedicated student currently working towards a Bachelor of Science in Information Technology (BSIT) degree with a specialization in software engineering. My passion lies in web development and creating web applications, and I am eager to acquire practical experience and deepen my knowledge in these domains. I am enthusiastic about the prospect of actively participating in real-world projects and collaborating with industry professionals. My commitment to continuous learning and personal growth fuels my belief that I can make a meaningful impact in the fields of programming and web development.
